

Susan Jin Davis, Chief Sustainability Officer, Comcast NBCUniversal

Susan Jin Davis, Chief Sustainability Officer, has over 25 years of experience in the communications and technology industry. In her current position, she is responsible for identifying sustainable strategies and priorities and for implementing the Company's Sustainability Program across all of Comcast NBCUniversal business units and functions.

Prior to her current role, Susan was Senior Vice President of Operations Compliance and was responsible for implementing product policies, operationalizing regulatory and legal requirements, reducing costs to the cable business and managing business compliance.

In 2011, Susan negotiated a historic Memorandum of Understanding between Comcast and the Asian American community as part of the Company's merger with NBCUniversal that created ground-breaking commitments in the areas of programming, supplier and employment diversity and community investment. She serves on Comcast's Internal Diversity Council and is a Company liaison to the Comcast and NBCUniversal Joint Diversity Council. She is an executive sponsor of Asian Pacific Americans at Comcast, a Company Employee Resource Group.

Susan was also integral in the 2011 launch of Comcast's Internet Essentials Program, the nation's largest, most comprehensive, and most successful high-speed Internet adoption program for low-income Americans in the country. The program is Comcast's most successful community investment initiative, having connected more than 3 million low income Americans to the power of the Internet in their homes.

Susan is also involved in the Company's approach to digital literacy, providing resources to customers on safe Internet use with particular emphasis on helping families understand the Internet and teaching children how to responsibly use Comcast's services. She leads the Company's Online Safety Advisory Council, an external body of leaders in the area online safety.

Susan completed the Women in Cable Telecommunications Senior Executive Summit at Stanford University's Graduate School of Business and has completed the Women's Executive Leadership Program at the Wharton School of Business. She received the 2010 Paragon Award of the National Association of Multi-Ethnicity in Cable and completed CTAM's Executive Management Program at the Harvard Business School. Susan was a fellow in the Betsy Magness Leadership Institute of the Women in Cable Telecommunications. She has been named one of the "Most Powerful Women in Cable" and one of the "The Most Influential Minorities in Cable" by Cablefax for many years. Susan serves as the Chair of the Board of the Asian Pacific American Institute for Congressional Studies and is a director on the Boards of the Asian Pacific Islander American Scholarship Fund, the Asian/Pacific Islander American Chamber of Commerce & Entrepreneurship, and the Juvenile Law Center. She also serves on the Board of Trustees of Bryn Mawr College.
